Supportive Services for Veteran Families

About 1736 Family Crisis Center

The mission of 1736 Family Crisis Center is to comprehensively help children, women, men, and families through crisis circumstances, including domestic violence, homelessness, abuse, neglect, poverty, substance use, post-traumatic stress disorder, and distress, and to improve their prospects for long-term housing, safety, survival, financial stability, and success.

Currently, the agency operates four confidentially-located shelters for domestic violence and human trafficking victims, Veterans programs in Los Angeles and Orange Counties, street outreach and emergency shelter for youth, a legal services clinic, a job development and placement program, five 24-hour crisis/suicide hotlines, and five community service centers that serve low-income individuals, children and families.

As part of our community services, 1736 FCC coordinates outreach and educational activities to promote awareness of domestic violence, at-risk youth, and homelessness issues and offers linkages to available internal and community resources. Each year we reach approximately 25,000 individuals through direct services and community educational outreach efforts.

About the Supportive Services for Veteran Families Program

The Veteran Families Program assists homeless and at-risk veterans and their families to obtain/retain housing and return to lives of promise and productivity. The program focuses on veterans who are homeless (approximately 80%) and also serves veterans who are at imminent risk of losing their current housing and finding themselves on the streets.

The program targets services to the most vulnerable, very low-income veterans including post-9/11 veterans struggling with the transition to civilian life, chronically homeless veterans, and veterans with children. The program separately serves Los Angeles and Orange Counties and seeks to fill critical gaps in community care by providing services not typically offered by other veteran service organizations.
